New IGSW Online Courses

The Institute for Geriatric Social Work Announces Two New Courses Open to the Public Today!

- P&G Course: Ageism in the New Millennium ($45, 3 CEUs)

This article-based course discusses the concept of ageism in a variety of contexts including gender, disabilities, healthcare, long-term care, race, and policy. Each article describes the ways in which ageism can be seen as omnipresent, internalized, and systemic in American society. This course also offers strategies for addressing ageism to promote lasting change.

- P&G Course: Supportive Housing for an Aging Society ($45, 3 CEUs)

This article-based course provides the history and current information on the state of housing for older adults. Current policies and programs are reviewed, as well as innovative ideas and collaborations. Housing is a complex issue for older adults, especially because their needs are so diverse. This course provides practitioners with knowledge to understand these wide-ranging issues.
