PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT AND PARENT SEMINARS:

Effective Interventions for Students with ASD: Practical Applications for Classroom Success

Seminar I: 8:30–11:30

Have you ever wondered if an intervention is a good fit for your student? Have you ever wondered what makes an intervention evidence-based? This session will answer those questions along with discussing the important elements of choosing, implementing & evaluating the effectiveness of evidence-based practices to meet individual needs. Using evidence-based decision making to develop exemplary antecedent based interventions for individuals with ASD will also be discussed.

Lunch: 11:30-12:30 on your own

Seminar II: 12:30-3:30

This seminar will discuss three evidence-based interventions: Naturalistic Intervention, Self-Modeling, and Self–Management. While these interventions may already be in use in many classrooms, it is critical that they are being implemented in a fashion that research has shown is most effective. Participants will learn essential components of each evidenced-based intervention, view examples of how to utilize each intervention and become familiar with efficient means of evaluating their effectiveness.
