Is American higher education in crisis?

Disinvestment by states has driven up tuition prices; students and their families worry increasingly about debt. Some are questioning the worth of a college education, even as study after study shows how important it is to economic and social mobility.

American Higher Education in Crisis? What Everyone Needs to Know (Oxford University Press, 2015) is a timely and concise analysis that guides readers through current forces and trends in higher education and speculates about some of the ways American colleges and universities will be reshaped in the years to come.

Goldie Blumenstyk, one of the nation’s most respected higher education journalists, is a long-time reporter for The Chronicle of Higher Education. Join the conversation as she and Dr. Kevin Kinser, Chair of the Educational Administration and Policy Studies Department at the University at Albany, explore themes of the book.

Copies of the book will be on sale at the event. A book signing will follow the discussion.
