

Literacy across the Content Areas:
A Summer Institute Focusing on Effective Instruction at the Middle and High School Levels

Join us for this three-day institute specifically designed for HFM BOCES component district teachers. Time will be spent discussing how teachers can help foster students' development of higher level thinking skills, metacognition and literacy skills in content area classes. Throughout the institute, participants will focus on:

- Actively engaging students in their learning,
- Incorporating reading comprehension strategies in everyday instruction,
- Using meaningful discussion in content areas to support student learning of content, and
- Teaching vocabulary effectively.

This experience will emphasize both a theoretical and practical approach as exemplified by the co-facilitators: Kathy Nickson, retired teacher and trainer from the University at Albany's Center on English Learning & Achievement (CELA) and Fran Boyer, a Literacy Coach at Amsterdam's Lynch Literacy Academy.

Dates: 8/18/08 – 8/20/08
