The Education Finance Research Consortium (EFRC) and the New York State Board of Regents will present three reports on K-12 education in New York State:

- The Impact of Teaching Disruptions on Student Achievement
Mariesa Herrmann and Jonah Rockoff
(Columbia University)
- State Education Aid, Tax Effort, and School District Efficiency in New York State
William Duncombe and John Yinger
(Center for Policy Research, the Maxwell School, Syracuse University)
- New Schools, New Leaders: A Study of Principal Turnover and Academic Achievement at New High Schools in New York City
Meryle Weinstein, Robin Jacobowitz, Todd Ely, Kate Landon and Amy Ellen Schwartz
(Institute for Education and Social Policy, New York University)

This event will take place Friday, October 23rd from 8:30 AM to 12:00 PM at the State Museum Theater of the Cultural Education Center in Albany, New York.

The authors of these reports are recognized experts on education issues, and their reports contain the most up-to-date and well-informed research available. Following these presentations, educational experts will provide formal comments on the reports and the audience will be invited to ask questions, discuss the implications of the research findings and suggest avenues for further research. Additional information about EFRC is available on our website at <http://www.albany.edu/edfin/>.

There is no cost to attend the forum.
