EMPOWERING INNOVATIVE LEADERS

GLOBAL EDUCATION POLICY

Master of Science
Doctor of Philosophy
We offer master’s and doctoral programs that allow those interested in international and comparative education to focus on global education policy at the K-12 and post-secondary levels. Graduates of EPL from all over the globe use their skills and professional connections to become educational leaders in governments, universities, international banks, development assistance agencies, non-governmental organizations, think tanks and private sector companies.

GLOBAL NETWORKS
Students in our programs are connected to the vast network of faculty relationships that exist within universities, education systems, non-governmental organizations, government and intergovernmental agencies, think tanks and companies worldwide.

OUR FACULTY
EPL is home to the nation’s top scholars of international and comparative education. We cover the globe with our research on policy and leadership, with particular expertise in Latin American, Chinese, European and Australian education systems; international education management; private and for-profit higher education; and cross-border higher education. Our faculty are leaders in major international scholarly and professional associations, including the Comparative and International Education Society (CIES); ASHE Council for International Higher Education; Association of International Education Administrators (AIEA); American International Recruitment Council (AIRC); and NAFSA: Association of International Educators. Our research and degree programs aim to strengthen decision-making at all levels of national education systems through the development and use of timely, high quality and relevant knowledge.

CONCENTRATIONS
Students can concentrate in cradle-to-career educational policy for schools or universities, as well as explore education and workforce links. Our programs provide students with a solid foundation in theory and practice of educational policy research, policy analysis and critical analytical decision-making, as well as leadership skills.

TUITION AND FEES*
New York residents $12,634
US Out-of-State $23,974
International $25,476
Limited scholarships available
*Per academic year, as of Spring 2017 Costs subject to change annually; excludes housing, meals, and incidental expenses