GLOBAL SOLIDARITY: HARNESING THE STRENGTH OF INDIGENOUS COMMUNITIES AROUND THE WORLD

This Symposium will highlight the successes that Indigenous communities, organizations, and peoples are achieving through the lens of Indigenous scholarship and pedagogy. It will bring together an interdisciplinary and international group of Indigenous scholars and scholars of Indigenous issues as well as students and other interested parties to share knowledge, learn from one another and grow and strengthen research alliances. The presentations will focus on the strength and resilience of Indigenous communities from a range of countries such as Tanzania, The United States, Sweden, Taiwan, and Canada.

Invited Speakers:

- Martin Nakata, Pro Vice Chancellor, Australian Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Centre, James Cook University, Australia
- Alex Wilson, Director of the Aboriginal Education Research Centre, University of Saskatchewan
- Patrik Lantto, Director of the Center for Sami Research, University of Umea, Sweden
- Yi-Chun Tricia Lin, Director of Women’s Studies Program, Southern Connecticut State University
- Kelly Askew, Director of the African Studies Center, The University of Michigan
- Bronwyn Carlson, from the University of Wollongong, Australia, and convener of the Forum on Indigenous Research Excellence (FIRE)

For more information please contact: www.albany.edu/indigeneity or igi@albany.edu