Master of Science in Information Science Degree (M.S.I.S.)

Accredited by the American Library Association, the M.S.I.S. prepares students for employment in corporate and public organizations where the generation, management, and use of information is the dominant or an essential aspect. It also equips students with the knowledge and skills required for entry into a doctoral program in information science.

The degree is awarded for successful completion of a minimum of 42 credit hours, of which 24 must be in Information Science. Most meet once a week for 3 hours on the downtown campus, many scheduled for late afternoon or evening. There are five concentrations:

1) Archives/Records Administration for students pursuing a career in archives, or as paper or electronic records managers
2) Library & Information Services* prepares students for positions in academic, special, or public libraries
3) Library & Information Services/School Media Specialist* for students seeking certification to work in public school libraries in New York State
4) Information Management & Policy Graduates work as information managers in government, corporate, and nonprofit organizations.
5) Information Systems & Technology* Graduates work as systems and technology experts in government, library, corporate, and nonprofit organizations.

* Can be completed fully online
