Gifts for Special UAlbany Initiatives:

The Excelsior Circle

The University is grateful to the many alumni, faculty, staff, parents and friends who support this great institution through restricted gifts, such as gifts-in-kind, annuities, stocks & bonds and contributions through special fund raising campaigns. The Excelsior Circle, one of UAlbany's most distinguished recognition societies, was established in honor of notable past presidents whose vision and foresight helped make UAlbany what it is today—and to gratefully acknowledge and recognize the philanthropic spirit of a new tomorrow.

Abram Brubacher Society

*($500,000 to $999,999)
President Abram Brubacher, 1915-1939: One of the longest serving presidents, President Brubacher was responsible for greatly strengthening undergraduate and graduate education while doubling the size of the downtown campus.*

DONOR PROFILE

Alumni Honor Business Professor Ronald Forbes

To show their appreciation for his years of teaching and friendship, former students of Ronald Forbes have launched a campaign to raise funds to refurbish and name a classroom in his honor, as well as create a scholarship endowment. If Forbes had his way, however, he would be honoring his students.

"I have been deeply moved by the feelings of so many of my former students," said Forbes, a professor emeritus of finance who retired from the University in 2000 after 31 years of service. They were remarkable in helping new graduates with advice, interviews, and, in many instances, jobs. Our alumni were also extremely generous to me in many important ways — from spending time discussing the latest innovations in finance to providing information and data for research."

Forbes admitted to "a special affection for the many students who worked on the various database projects we carried out for more than two decades. These projects were vital sources of information on the tax-exempt bond market, and issuers of bonds, investment bankers, and institutional investors relied on them. They required absolute integrity, and students working on them were really employed 12 months every year."

Neil Flanagan, B.S.'87, was one of Forbes's database workers — a job he sought out at the end of his sophomore year and held through graduation. The database position was "on-the-job training for Wall Street investment banks' two-year analyst program that was one of the most sought-after and difficult jobs to obtain when I graduated. UAlbany was one of only a few non-Ivy League schools whose graduates made it to the final interview rounds, and Dr. Forbes's students were always hired," recalled Flanagan. He is now a senior managing director with Bear, Stearns & Co., Inc.

Like Flanagan, School of Business Interim Dean Paul Leonard was one of Forbes's students. "Ron devoted his life to helping his students. He offered difficult courses — really difficult courses! — to prepare students to be able to perform successfully in the very competitive world of investment and commercial banking," Leonard said.

Leonard and his wife, Kristine, are major contributors to the Forbes Initiative. The named classroom, Leonard said, "will provide a modern teaching facility for future finance students, and the scholarship endowment will provide support for students in perpetuity."

John Levato, assistant dean for Alumni Relations and Development and Career Services and also a former colleague of the retired educator, said: "If you were one of his students, you knew you were the most important thing in his life. Ron was a tough taskmaster, but his students knew he was training them to be successful."

Gifts to Endowments

As a vital resource that is integral to the long term growth and future success of the University, endowments play an increasingly important role. Endowed funds provide the flow of capital necessary to promote educational innovation, provide scholarships, foster scientific research and enhance academic programs at the University at Albany. We are grateful to the following donors who contributed at least $1,000 to the following endowed funds.

Your generosity and contributions to the University at Albany allow us to help sustain our commitment to academic distinction, providing unrestricted resources vital to building and maintaining state-of-the-art facilities, nationally recognized programs, and innovative academic opportunities. Thanks to the ongoing generosity of you — our alumni and friends — the University at Albany continues its long-standing tradition of providing our students with a stimulating environment in which to live and learn.

Annual gifts support the University's commitment to excellence by helping provide funds for:

- ◆ attracting well-qualified, bright and inquisitive undergraduate and graduate students;
- ◆ maintaining a first-class faculty — leaders in their disciplines — to teach our programs of distinction and prominence;
- ◆ providing quality educational and community outreach programs for our students, alumni and members of our global communities; and
- ◆ meeting our objective in taking our place among the nation's top 30 public research universities by the end of the decade.

To make your annual gift on-line, please go to www.albany.edu and click on Support UAlbany. It's easy!

If you would like to learn more about the University's annual giving program, please contact Karen Connelly, interim director of the UAlbany Fund, at 1-800-577-7869 or kconnelly@uamail.albany.edu.

Dedicated to the University

The President's Club

The University at Albany recognizes the financial leadership of those individuals—alumni, family members, friends—who demonstrate their commitment to excellence in education with annual contributions of $1,000 or more.

Comprising the University's uppermost tier of annual giving, President's Club members provide essential unrestricted resources that enable the University to create unique and exciting educational opportunities, and prepare our students to respond to the complexities of an ever-changing world.

Mary Kays with Associate Vice President Sorrell Chesin at her home in Essex County.

DONOR PROFILE

Mary Kays, B.A. '39: At Home in the Adirondacks

"I have always loved learning. That's why I think this place, which is my most valued possession, should go to an institution where there is a love of learning."

— Mary Kays

Mary Kays admits she has "meandered a lot" during her lifetime. It's the way she's preferred to do things.

Growing up in Pottersville and later in Olmstedville in Essex County, Kays, B.A. '39, C.A.S. '72, first aspired to be a trapeze artist. She eventually came to earth and enrolled at the New York State College for Teachers, UAlbany's predecessor institution, on a Depression-era Regents scholarship.

After graduation, Kays served in the Army Air Corps, then went on to a career as a French and history teacher and a guidance counselor at four different school districts in the Adirondacks.

In between teaching and guidance counseling, she also worked as a French-English secretary for a Dutch diplomat in New York City and at Macy's department store in what would today be customer service.

Kays also earned a certificate of advanced studies in guidance counseling from UAlbany and became director of guidance at the Bolton Central Schools in Bolton Landing, N.Y., where she retired in 1973.

"I've been a wanderer," Kays confessed. "I can't claim that I was a great achiever, but I've done some interesting things, and met some interesting people."

Now 85, she lives quietly in Olmstedville in a charming old farmhouse that has been in her family since 1940. The home includes 100.5 acres in the Town of Minerva in Essex County and an additional 16 acres in the Town of Chester in Warren County.

Kays, who has turned down many opportunities to sell the property, recently bequeathed it to the University in memory of her late uncle and mentor, Walter Scott Beadnell. It was Beadnell who encouraged her to try for the scholarship that made it possible for her to attend the College for Teachers.

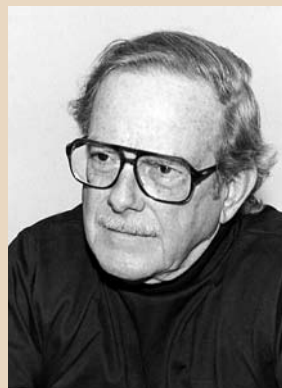

"I do have a love of learning," Kays said. "That's why I think this place, which is my most valued possession, should go to an institution where there is a love of learning."

John A. Ether

DONOR PROFILE

John A. Ether — Life-Long Educator

John A. Ether was a life-long educator who served as a teacher, principal and superintendent before joining the University's School of Education faculty in 1962. Before his retirement in 1987, Ether mentored scores of students who themselves went on to careers in education. A group of those former students established an endowment to honor Ether prior to his passing in June of 2002.

"Dr. Ether took a keen interest in our development and always encouraged us," said Ira

Tolbert, M.S.'73, who retired as assistant provost for recruitment and retention at Binghamton University in 2000. "We enjoyed ourselves immensely with him because he had a gift with words and rhetoric, and he was well known to us for his sharp responses and wit."

Tolbert has spearheaded the initiative to establish Jack's Fund for Professional Educators Serving the Disadvantaged with a gift of $1,000. The fund, now close to $20,000, will support students of academic achievement whose studies would expand educational opportunities for those who traditionally have been disadvantaged.

Other members of the organizing committee include former students Mike Darcy, M.A.'73, Ed.D.'73; Jonetta Darcy, Ed.D.'87; Nancy Ray M.S.'72, Ed.D.'78; Nancy Papish, B.A.'68, M.A.'73; Judith Adrezin, M.S.'71, C.A.S.'74; Eve Fantasia; Estelle Avery; Diana Budhai, parent of UAlbany student Ruperto Budhai; and Debbie Ether Dayton, the Ethers' daughter.

"Jack Ether was one of the School of Education's most dedicated and caring faculty members," said Dean Susan Phillips. "He helped to prepare a generation of teachers for desegregation in the mid-1960s, winning a number of grants to aid in integrating education."

For additional information on Jack's Fund or to share a memory of Jack, please contact Christina Sebastian, School of Education, at 518.442.4991 or at csebastian@uamail.albany.edu.

Criminal Justice Fellowship Honors Robert A. Martin Jr.

Doctoral student Robert A. Martin Jr. was all but finished writing his criminal justice dissertation and had even accepted a job at the University of Alaska when he died last summer in a motorcycle accident. Establishing an endowment in his memory “just came naturally,” according to his father, Robert A. Martin Sr.

“A fellowship was actually Rob’s idea,” the elder Martin explained. He said that after the death of his wife, Dorothy, nearly five years ago, he and his son had “started talking about what we might do if something happened to either one of us. So it just came naturally when he was in the accident.” Originally, they had been thinking of a fellowship in memory of Dorothy.

Robert Sr. said his son was deeply engaged in the life of UAlbany’s School of Criminal Justice, where he was pursuing his doctorate after working as an assistant district attorney and public defender in Fulton County and teaching criminal justice at Fulton-Montgomery Community College for 10 years.

“Rob loved the School. He couldn’t say enough about it. It was like a home, and he knew it was a good school,” Martin Sr. said.

To fund the Robert A. Martin Jr. Fellowship in Criminal Justice, the elder Martin has bequeathed to the University his home and 140 acres in the Town of Galway in northern Saratoga County. The fellowship will support an enhanced award for a doctoral student and will allow the School to be competitive in recruiting top candidates, School of Criminal Justice Dean Julie Horney said

“The students, faculty and staff of the School were deeply affected by Rob’s death,” Horney said. “The Robert A. Martin Jr. Fellowship provides a wonderful way to honor his memory and assists the School in our efforts to maintain and build upon our standing as one of the top criminal justice programs in the nation.”

Robert Sr. is already supporting an annual fellowship to assure that current students in criminal justice can benefit now, even before establishment of the permanent endowment in his son’s memory.

DONOR PROFILE

Initiatives for Women: A Decade of Achievements

UAlbany's Initiatives for Women program marks its tenth anniversary this year with numerous achievements to celebrate. Over the past decade, IFW has raised more than $700,000 to support University women and women's groups, and sponsored programs focused on such issues as women in education, women and health, and women and technology.

But IFW chair Kathy Turek says the people who have devoted themselves to IFW see it not just as a fundraising organization that provides financial awards and educational initiatives for women at UAlbany. For these dedicated volunteers, the program represents an opportunity to ensure that the University continues to grow as a community where women are supported and encouraged in their academic, career and personal endeavors: a place of hope.

Turek indicates that IFW funds provide tuition, money for books and fees, and other financial support to both undergraduates and graduate students. Others promote leadership skills and professional development by providing funding for faculty and staff to attend workshops, seminars and institutes. Approximately one in three of the applications received for IFW support is funded. This year, for instance, 44 of 114 applicants received awards. Since 1993, more than 300 women, of all ages, backgrounds and ethnicities, have benefited from IFW.

IFW raises money to support its projects in a number of ways, said Carol Bullard, UAlbany's director of Corporate and Foundation Relations. The biggest fundraiser for the program is the annual fall dinner, which combines opportunities for social interaction with informational programming. Bullard, former chair of the IFW steering committee and a current member, works with other committee members to solicit support from such entities as The Ford Foundation, which challenged the organization to raise $160,000 in endowment funds. The successful completion of this goal in October 2003 resulted in an $80,000 award from Ford to establish a new fund to support graduate students pursuing careers in the sciences. The Avon Products Foundation awarded IFW two grants of $100,000 and $72,000 for the IFW-Avon Life Impact Scholarship Program, which provides tuition and other educational expenses to women transferring to UAlbany from local community colleges. By the end of 2003, 18 women will have received Life Impact Scholarships.

Individual donors, too, have been generous. Together with corporate and foundation donors, they have contributed more than $700,000 and established 15 endowed funds, bringing IFW's endowment to nearly $280,000. A particularly popular method of giving, Honoring Our Mothers, allows IFW supporters to make gifts in honor of their own moms. In turn, these gifts advance the academic and professional aims of UAlbany students or employees who are mothers and demonstrate financial need.

The University at Albany is rightfully proud of its many accomplishments in teaching, research, discovery and community involvement over the past year. However, our accomplishments would have been seriously diminished without the support of the people and organizations listed herein. These are some of our partners, people whose vision of a better tomorrow for students and our society is supported by their philanthropy.

In this report you will find listed all those who made gifts to the University of at least $100 received between July 1, 2002 and June 30, 2003. (Note that contributions received after June 30, 2003 will be reported in the 2003-2004 Honor Roll of Donors.) While each gift is important to the University community, both useful in our unending pursuit of excellence and heartening in its endorsement of our efforts, we unfortunately have space in this publication too limited to list the many individual contributors below the $100 level. Please be assured, nevertheless, that the University is grateful for gifts of all sizes.

The Advancement staff has enjoyed reading through this list, recalling conversations and letters of support as we made every effort to ensure accuracy. In compiling a list of this magnitude, however, errors are possible. We apologize for any misspellings or omissions, and request that you contact Valerie DiRocco-Ruskin '95 MPA, Director of Stewardship, at 518-437-4973 or vruskin@uamail.albany.edu to inform us of any discrepancies. Thank you for your understanding.

BOLD. VISION.

The Campaign for the University at Albany

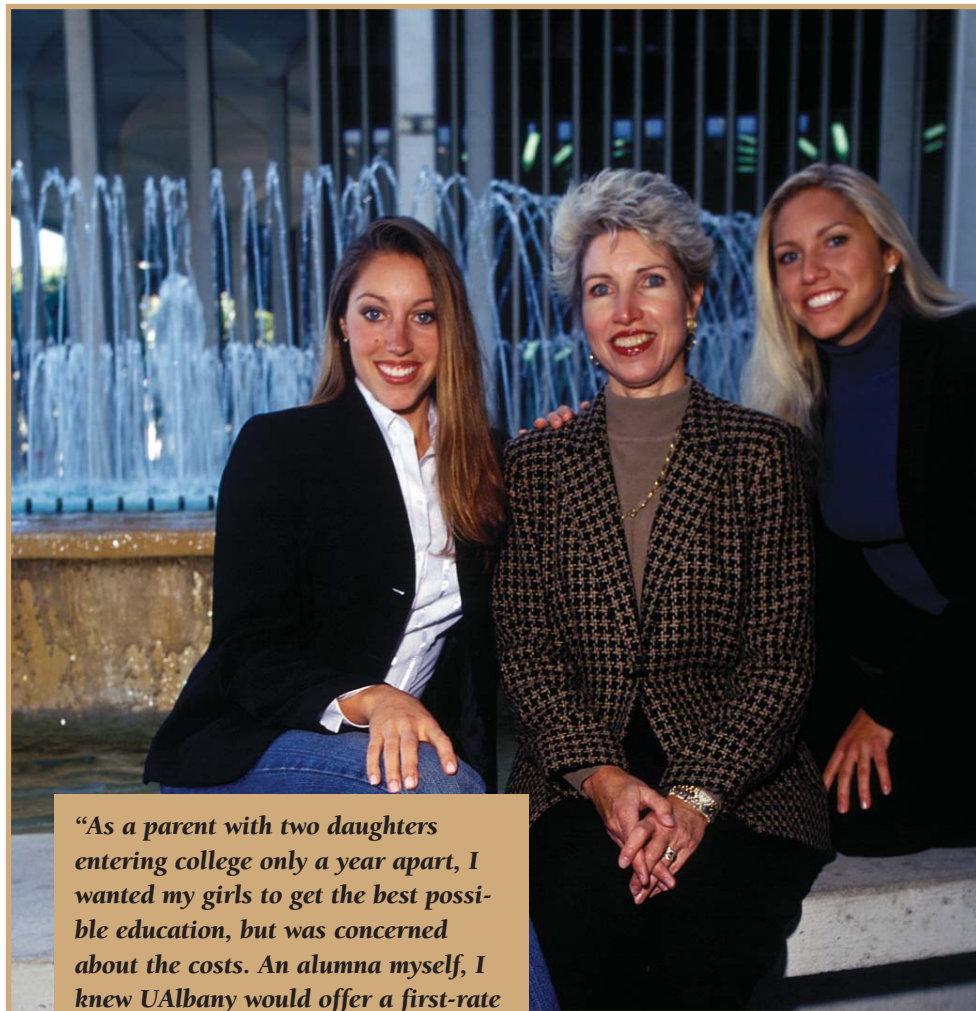

Our donors, all 13,358 and counting, are making a difference, and we thank you! Your support is helping the University at Albany build faculty ranks, attract excellent students, increase the number of top-ranked academic programs, and provide facilities for a new century.

In appreciation of support at certain levels, UAlbany offers opportunities to recognize faculty or loved ones through the naming of facilities, funds and programs. Below are a few of many possibilities. We invite you to talk with us about your special interests and how we, together, can achieve UAlbany's bold vision.

Supporting UAlbany's Tradition of Excellence

"As a parent with two daughters entering college only a year apart, I wanted my girls to get the best possible education, but was concerned about the costs. An alumna myself, I knew UAlbany would offer a first-rate education of great value, and that's exactly what my daughters have found. I'm grateful and want to assure the same wonderful experience for students who follow. That's why I give to UAlbany!"

Gail Henry Berley, B.S.'73

Please join Gail Henry Berley and many others in providing support that builds on UAlbany's tradition of excellence to prepare students for our changing world.

Contributions to the Parents Fund, a part of the UAlbany Fund, may be made by visiting our website at www.albany.edu/giving. Checks should be made out to the University at Albany Foundation.
