Course Description

This course is designed to provide students with an introduction to the field of public administration including its practice, themes and values, and contemporary challenges. As broadly defined by Woodrow Wilson in 1887, public administration is “government in action.” It includes activities taken directly by government, or indirectly by its partners, to meet the democratically expressed needs of the public. These activities include policy design, implementation, evaluation of outcomes, and re-design or re-direction.

By the end of the course, students should be able to: 1) think strategically about public administration problems and their solutions; 2) analyze and evaluate various means for assuring administrative accountability and responsiveness; 3) analyze and evaluate challenges associated with implementing public programs through both governmental and non-governmental actors and 4) think critically about competing demands that public administrators face (between, for example, accountability, authority, democracy, inclusiveness, and fairness). Students should leave the course with a substantive, applied understanding of the values and practices of public administration.

Assignments

General guidelines:

Memos:

- Due dates for memos are listed below under “memos” and in the course schedule. Submit all memos under the assignments folder in Blackboard by 11:59pm on the designated date.
- Write all memos in complete sentences and paragraphs, double-spaced, with one-inch margins, Times New Roman 12 point font, and number the pages. I will return memos that do not meet these guidelines to be rewritten.
- Be sure to include your name, the memo number (e.g., “Memo 1”), the course number and the instructors name at the top of your memo. You can do this in 1 or 2 lines.
- The length of each memo is specified in separate instructions. You can provide tables and figures to support your arguments; place them at the end of the paper. Bibliographies, tables and figures do not count towards page length. Please do not include cover pages.
- All references should be cited in MLA style. Formatting instructions can be found at http://library.albany.edu/cfox?type=mla. For further guidelines and a list of appropriate sources see Appendix A.

Commentaries:

- All commentaries are due (submitted electronically) the day before class at 2pm. You must submit your commentary by 11:59 pm on the Sunday prior to class or the assignment will expire (in other words, you will no longer have access to submit it).
- Commentaries should be approximately 300 words (or less) in length.

News briefs:

- All news briefs are due (submitted electronically) the day before the assigned class at 2pm, and students will present them in class the following day.
- All news briefs should be created in power point with no more than 5 slides, and should take no more than 10 minutes to present.

Memos

To assess your understanding of the course material and your ability to apply concepts to real-life cases of government action, students will write three memos during the semester. Each memo will require students to use coursework to understand real public administration challenges. The memos will require students to conduct independent research. Additional details about the exact questions and length of each assignment will be distributed separately in class. Be sure to use a memo format, see the example on Blackboard in the “writing resources” folder.

Pre-Writing Tasks. To improve the quality of memos, you may submit for feedback a one-page summary of the major arguments of your memo one week before each assignment is due. Submit your summaries electronically only via blackboard, do not email me. You may choose to structure the summary in the PAD 507 memo format. I will provide you with feedback on the summaries within 2-3 days, via Blackboard. I will not accept late submissions of summaries.

Commentaries

Students are required to submit weekly commentaries that relate to assigned readings for 10 (and only 10) of the last 13 classes – there is no commentary for class 1. On some days I will require these responses, on others you may choose to submit one or not. Guiding questions for commentaries are included in the commentary assignments on Blackboard. You may answer the guiding questions or you may submit 2 comments and/or questions that the readings raise for you. For example, you may focus on something you find interesting, surprising, or disagreeable, or you may “connect the dots” between assigned readings and a case. But you should not summarize the reading. These commentaries are intended to help you prepare for class discussion, and give me a sense of how well you understand and can apply course concepts prior to lectures. I will not accept late submissions of commentaries. You may not submit additional commentaries for extra credit.

News Brief

Students are required to write and present 1 news brief during the semester with another student. The news brief must draw on a real-life example that is currently in the news and that relates to the readings for that day. Your news brief should summarize the key points of a current news story, and make two points or raise two questions about the story based on the reading. For example, if the day’s reading is about public participation, you could bring in a news story about participatory budgeting in New York City, and discuss how well it is designed. We will assign students to topics during the first class of the semester. You should be prepared to share your news brief in a power point format during the relevant class.

Grading

Student performance in the course will be determined as follows:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>

Grading Criteria

Memos – I will assess memos based on a single grading rubric attached in Appendix B and posted on Blackboard. In general, submissions will be assessed according to 1) the degree to which the student answered the question in a sophisticated manner, 2) the degree to which the student illustrated a complete understanding of the course material, 3) the overall organization and professionalism of the paper, and 4) the degree to which formatting and citation guidelines were followed.

Commentaries – I will assess commentaries based on the degree to which you demonstrate 1) that you have read the material and 2) that you have thought critically about it (i.e., your comments go beyond summary to apply course concepts to your own practice, past or current public administration situations, or study cases).

News briefs – I will assess the news briefs based on the degree to which 1) you clearly explain the news story, 2) you clearly relate the story to course readings for the day, and 3) you raise relevant questions about the course readings.

Attendance – Attendance will be measured by your presence in the classroom, and stands as a proxy for your commitment to the course. If you do not attend class, you will not receive credit for attendance that day. I understand that sometimes there are circumstances related to professional and personal obligations that will require students to be absent on certain days.

Late assignments - For every 24-hour period that a memo is late, the grade will be reduced by 1 point from the 20 point scale. The first 24-hour period begins on midnight the day the assignment is due.

Grade appeals - Students may appeal a grade on a specific assignment within two weeks of the assignment being returned. To submit an appeal, the student should email the professor with the original graded assignment and a letter/memo outlining why you think the grade should be changed. In the appeal, students must identify 1) the specific issue you believe should be reconsidered and 2) evidence from assignment instructions, assigned readings, lectures, or other materials that would indicate your original submission is worthy of a higher grade. Be aware that your grade may go up, down, or remain the same as a result of your appeal.

Communication - Students are invited to ask questions in class, during office hours, or via email. The best way to contact me outside of class is by email. I will usually respond to emails within 24 hours. If you send an email to me after 6pm, I may not response until the following day. Please check your email regularly for emails from me as well.
Other policies

Academic Integrity - As members of the SUNY community, we are all expected to adhere to high standards of intellectual and academic integrity. You can view our Academic Code at: http://www.albany.edu/content_images/AcademicIntegrity.pdf. Violations of these standards will result in one of the following penalties or some variant: revision and re-submission of the assignment, reduction of the grade or failure of the assignment, reduction of the course grade or failure of the course, filing of a case with the Office of Conflict Resolution and Civic Responsibility, suspension, or expulsion. In all cases, a Violation of Academic Integrity Report will be submitted to the Dean of Graduate Studies to be placed in your university file, with copies provided to you, the department head, and the Dean of Rockefeller College.

- See Appendix C for a description of how this course seeks to prepare students to develop their competencies in the five areas identified by the National Association of Schools of Public Affairs and Administration (NASPAA).

- Students with needs consistent with the Americans with Disability Act should inform the instructor during the first week of class so that reasonable accommodations can be made.

- This syllabus serves as a general outline. The instructor reserves the right to deviate from the plan if necessary. Students will be notified promptly of any modifications.

- Students who have previously taken PAD 500 and are repeating it will be required to submit memo assignments that contain entirely new material compared to assignments that have been previously submitted to PAD 500 for a grade. Resubmitted assignments will be considered plagiarized. They also create an inequity with other students in the class who have not benefited from prior feedback, and reflect a lack of effort to achieve academic excellence.

Appendix A: Citations and Sources

Citations. Include a bibliography in each memo. Students are to cite sources in a manner consistent with academic honesty policies. I would rather you include too many citations rather than too few. As a general rule of thumb, provide a citation for anything you did not know before you began your research. In-text citations and the bibliography should be formatted in MLA style. See the on-line help sheets at University at Albany’s citation fox website at http://library.albany.edu/cfox?type=mla. This reference explains how to cite references in the works cited section (bibliography) of your paper and how to cite references in the text of your memo.

Acceptable Sources. Generally, your research should use primary sources more than secondary sources. Primary sources include, but are not limited to, government reports, legislative hearings and testimonies, court decisions, and government auditor reports. Secondary sources are summaries and interpretations of primary sources. Secondary sources include, but are not limited to, articles from major newspapers and news magazines, network and cable news programs, and academic research. Blogs and Wikipedia are not acceptable sources. Be an intelligent consumer of information by evaluating secondary sources for potential political bias. If it is well known that a particular source is liberal or conservative, you must compensate for this in the paper. Acknowledge its bias and balance the information with something from a source on the other side of the political spectrum. Here are some places to start with your research, but feel free to consult other sources:

- Congressional testimony (available through Lexis/Nexis via the library) and reports completed by Congressional committee staff
- Agency Inspector General reports
- Congressional Research Service reports (opencrs.com and scattered elsewhere around the internet)

When citing government documents, follow the formatting guidelines in Rubin’s Modified MLA Formatting for Government Documents, posted on Blackboard under course content/writing resources.
