Re: 2010 Mileage Rate

The IRS has recently announced that effective January 1, 2010, the IRS standard rate for business miles driven has been adjusted to 50 cents per mile.

Please be reminded that reimbursable mileage is that which exceeds a traveler's typical commute to and from their official work station. The mileage to and from work is personal and not reimbursable under IRS guidelines. Please be sure to take this into consideration when requesting mileage reimbursement.
