Note: Article II, Section 2 of the U.S. Constitution authorizes the President to grant executive clemency for Federal criminal convictions. The U.S. Pardon Attorney, in consultation with the U.S. Attorney General's office, receives and reviews all petitions for executive clemency, initiates the necessary investigations, and prepares a report and recommendation for the President. Clemency may be a reprieve, remission of fine or restitution, commutation, or pardon. A "pardon," which is generally considered only after sentence completion, restores basic civil rights and may aid in the reinstatement of professional or trade licenses that may have been lost as a result of the conviction. A "commutation" is a reduction of sentence. Commutations include remission of fines. Cases in which multiple forms of relief were granted are counted in only one category. The figures presented in this table do not include clemency actions on draft resisters, or military deserters and absentees during the Vietnam war era. The data for 1969-75 are reported for the 12-month period ending June 30. Beginning in 1976, the data are reported for the Federal fiscal year, which is the 12-month period ending September 30. Some data have been revised by the Source and may differ from previous editions of SOURCEBOOK.

<sup>b</sup>In addition to the six commutations, President Clinton granted one reprieve of an execution date during fiscal year 2000.

<sup>c</sup>In addition to the 40 commutations, President Clinton granted 1 reprieve of an execution date during fiscal year 2001.
