Using Experiential Techniques in the Treatment of Combat Veterans with PTSD

Presented by: Karen M. Sheehan, LCSW-R
Jennifer A. Courtney, PhD, LCSW

Thursday, August 13
9:00-12:00

This workshop is designed to teach participants about the use of experiential activities in the treatment of combat veterans with PTSD. The workshop will include didactic presentation and experiential exercises to illustrate the development and sequencing of interventions to increase the likelihood of the creation of new learning and adaptive behavior. The “learning by doing” model places equal emphasis on thinking (cognition), feeling (emotions) and doing (behaviors) in the creation and implementation of new adaptive strategies.

Learning objectives:
• To be able to identify the unique treatment needs of combat veterans with PTSD.
• To be able to identify the impact of combat related PTSD across the life span.
• To become familiar with the theory and application of experiential techniques in the treatment of combat veterans with PTSD.

This program is free of charge. However if you would like to receive Social Work Continuing Education hours, there is a cost of $60/ $30 for SSW field instructors. This event is approved for 3 CE hours.
