Conference to Celebrate 35 Years of Women's Studies

Where have we been?

Where are we now?

Where do we want to go?

November 30 – December 1, 2006

The 5th Annual Women's Studies Student Conference will mark the 35th anniversary of Women's Studies at UAlbany by reflecting on our history while also envisioning future pathways for feminism and other social justice movements. We invite scholarly and creative submissions from graduate and undergraduate students (not limited to UAlbany), as well as community workers. We also invite submissions from all disciplines. Topics may vary but should utilize a historical lens addressing the above questions) and examine intersections of race, class, gender, and sexuality. Contemporary issues – such as war and militarization, sexual violence, globalization, immigration, and the environment – may also be addressed, but historical explorations must be incorporated.

Please send 200-word abstracts describing your project to wstudent@albany.edu.

Deadline for abstracts: October 27, 2006.
