Section I—Explanation of Reduced Course Load Status

1. All Students—All students are eligible to request a reduced course load for the following reasons:
   A. When the student has a documented, qualifying illness or medical condition.
      - Students are required to submit a letter from a Medical Professional (MD or PSYD) outlining the medical condition for the request, the time period a reduced course load is needed, and recommendation of appropriate course load for the given semester.
      - This reason is limited to no more than 12 months total for an academic program, but requires a separate Reduced Course Load request each term.
      - Normal pregnancy is not a condition eligible for medical reduced course load.

   B. When the student is in their final semester of coursework.
      - This reason may be used only ONCE during a student’s program of study and a 3 credit minimum registration is required. If final semester registration is only one course, the course may not be a fully online/distance course.

   C. When difficulties related to English language, the American education system or reading
      Requirements indicate that the student’s academic success would best be served by a reduced course load.
      - Students may use this reason only ONCE during their academic program and a 9 credit minimum is required.

2. Graduate Students - Graduate degree level students are eligible to request a reduced course load for the following reasons:
   A. Master’s Students - When all coursework is completed except the required thesis, final project or internship (Note: dedicated course registration required per academic term; RCL for required internship may not exceed one year)
      - Students must be enrolled in a 3 credit thesis course; 1 credit 699C/698C/680C course, or internship course for extension.

   B. Doctoral Students - When either
      - All coursework is completed and the student has not yet been admitted to candidacy (3 credits must be taken) OR
      - All coursework has been taken except the dissertation. Students must be enrolled in departmental dissertation credits or a 1 credit 899 course.

   B. Any graduate student with a full Assistantship is eligible to request a reduced course load of 9 credits.

NOTE: ISSS will contact you regarding your request only if we have questions or otherwise deny your request due non-eligibility.
