The School of Social Welfare has made a profound difference in the Capital Region and beyond for more than four decades. It has done so by fostering innovative policies, programs and services that can be replicated nationwide. Above all, the key to the School’s impact has been our students, faculty, staff and alumni along with our research centers, all working in partnership with community providers to develop best social work practices.

If our work is to continue and flourish, generous support is necessary from individual donors, corporations, foundations and organizations to provide scholarships for talented students and to provide the School with the critical tools needed to expand research and demonstration projects.

Help us reach our goal of $3 million by contributing to one of the existing scholarships (see list), establishing your own fund, or making a donation to the school. Please use the contribution form to make a contribution.

Please join us in honoring our donors and award recipients.
