

Employee Assistance Program

HELPING EMPLOYEES COPE DURING CHALLENGING TIMES

A checklist for supervisors and managers

- ◆ Seek clear direction from management. Consult with the Office of Human Resources regularly for advice and guidance. Provide factual information and answer questions accurately, but avoid “gloom and doom” scenarios. As the leader, you set the emotional tone for your group so do your best to keep their spirits up.
- ◆ While it may feel awkward, maintain office routines and normal workplace protocols. For many, the routine of work may be a haven.
- ◆ Provide an opportunity for employees to express their feelings. It is important for employees to know that it’s healthy to express their feelings and to expect grieving to take time. Be available to listen. Offer your support. Ask how you can help.
- ◆ Schedule time for employees to meet as a group through Zoom if that is viable option for communicating with your team. It is helpful to realize the strength that comes with support from others. It is important for them to know they are not alone.
- ◆ Educate yourself about normal reactions to a critical incident such as this pandemic. Recognize your responsibility as a role model. People automatically take their cues from the leader, so you must model the behavior you expect. If your staff is working long hours, pitch in and help out. If you expect them to meet tight deadlines, be sure you do the same. And to minimize griping, don’t be a complainer yourself. UAlbany EAP can recommend good resources.
- ◆ Be alert to disturbing behaviors or emotions that last more than four to six weeks or that are having adverse effects on work performance. Some examples are escalating conflicts with co-workers, isolation from coworkers, crying for no apparent reason, and expressions of emptiness or hopelessness about the future. If you are concerned, contact EAP and/or Human Resources for guidance.
- ◆ Remember, you have been affected too. Be sure to take care of yourself. See the following tips.

Don’t hesitate to reach out for help. If these ideas seem difficult to incorporate or you are experiencing symptoms of depression, anxiety, or are unable to sleep or function well, seek support. EAP is scheduling appointments via phone and email for assessment, information, referrals, and supervisory consultations.

SELF-COMPASSION FOR SUPERVISORS

- ◇ Be kind to YOURSELF and take mini breaks. The best way to relax and stay focused is to step away from your computer for five minutes. Take some deep breaths, do some grounding exercises, stretch or focus on your pets (they can bring us comfort).
- ◇ Create a ritual to transition from work to home. If you are working from home, you live in your office. It can be easy to overwork. Set a time to stop working and then stop. It is important to differentiate work time from personal time, especially if you are working from home. When you are done working, let your coworkers know and turn off your computer and phone.
- ◇ Remember to engage in non-work hobbies. Even short amounts of time participating in a hobby gives your mind a break and helps you to increase moments of pleasure.
- ◇ Exercise regularly. Create an exercise routine, find something that you enjoy — it can be a sport that increases your heart rate or something brief or gentle like taking a walk or restorative yoga. YouTube has numerous videos for guided exercise, yoga, or dance.
- ◇ Work toward a healthy diet. Make conscious choices, take a break while eating, slow down, and incorporate food that tastes good and makes you feel good.

Contact:
Brenda Seckerson
EAP Coordinator
bseckerson@albany.edu
518.442.5483
albany.edu/eap

New Yorkers can also call the COVID-19 Emotional Support Hotline at 1-844-863-9314 for mental health counseling.

Content used with permission from The University of Texas at Austin Employee Assistance Program, NYS GOER and M. McIntyre, from People Management 2020.