Join a new online class about the future of education!

ETAP 687
Curriculum, Teaching, and Learning in the Digital Age
Instructor: Dr. Yotam Hod
Fall 2018

Come join an online course that examines how education and learning are changing right before our eyes. This course will bring in cutting-edge theory and practice to answer big, relevant questions, including

(1) What is changing about our world and how is this related to education and learning?
(2) What is worth teaching in light of these changes?
(3) What does the science of learning tell us about how to deal with these changes? And
(4) How should we design our learning spaces as we rethink education?

This course will be informative, interactive, and most of all fun!

It is a new topic relevant to all Master's level students from CDIT as well as other ETAP programs. Doctoral students who are interested in this topic are welcome to take this course too.
