R Crj 282
Introduction to Research Design in Criminal Justice (3)
This course offered online through the Blackboard Learning System. The practical aspect of doing theoretically informed criminological research. The course should provide students with 1) the methods of research available to criminologists, 2) the connection between theory and data, and 3) how to make criminological sense out of a body of data. It will cover a variety of design issues, methodological issues and analytic techniques. The techniques provide a springboard for the discussion of important methodological issues: the relationship between theory and data, the logic of inference, causality, data collection, model specification, standardized versus unstandardized data and many others. Prerequisite(s): R CRJ 281.

Punishment and Correction (3)
This course offered online through the Blackboard Learning System. Interdisciplinary review of the history of criminal punishment, analyzing the main changes that have occurred and their causes. Examines the dominant justifications used for punishing offenders, such as deterrence, retribution and rehabilitation. Special attention is given to the implications of the different justifications of punishment for current penological practice such as prison, jail, probation, parole, other alternative ways of dealing with offenders and sentencing. Reform is then discussed within this historical and interdisciplinary context. Prerequisite(s): R Crj 200 or 201.

Problem Oriented Policing (3)
This course offered online through the Blackboard Learning System. This course reviews the history of problem oriented policing (POP) and its role as a modern policing strategy in America and internationally. The precursors to POP such as Community Oriented Policing and different policing styles and strategies are reviewed, and their special relationships with POP analyzed. The role of problem solving in everyday policing and how it may or may not differ from POP is examined. The student will learn how to specify problems so that the appropriate police responses may be identified. Using the scientific approach of SARA, ways of assessing the effectiveness of police responses and interventions to specific problems are demonstrated.

Seminar in Criminal Justice: Dehumanization: US vs Them (3)
This course offered online through the Blackboard Learning System. In this course we will study how dehumanization manifests itself in our everyday lives. This course will first review the building blocks of dehumanization, such as moral disengagement and Essentialism. From there, we will examine how dehumanization spans the fields of Psychology, Neuroscience, Evolution and more. Each week we will examine a group deemed as an "other" by society and investigate why we constantly participate in this "them-ification," and the potential ramifications such as hate crimes, modern-day slavery and genocide. May be repeated for up to 12 credits when content varies.
