6 Approve or Deny the Time Record
➢ If the Time Record is accurate, click on the Approve button and the record will move from pending to approved status.
➢ If the Time Record is not accurate, enter a comment in the box, explaining your reason for denying the record and click the Deny button. The Time Record will be returned to the employee with the comment for correction.

7 Employee Roster
➢ The last section on the Supervisor Work Roster is the Employee Roster. This lists the employees whose Time Records you are responsible for and provides you with links to access their Time Records information.
➢ It is important to review the “Next Timesheet Date” column on your roster. This date is the first day of the month for which a time record has not been approved. If this date is not current, action needs to be taken to get the employee’s time record up to date. Ultimately, a supervisor is responsible to ensure all supervisees’ time records are up to date.
➢ If [...] appears under an employee’s name, this indicates the employee is also a supervisor within your department. If you click on the [...] their supervisor work roster will be brought up, and you can review time records information for the employees they supervise.
