Learning how to work toward your retirement objectives

Have you thought about your retirement lately? What it is you would like to do when you retire? Whatever it is, you're going to need the proper funding. And here's the thing, you may be responsible for more of that funding than you think. You may not want to rely on Social Security and pension plans for all the income you'll need in retirement. So how can you fill the gap that starts where Social Security and/or your pension plan leave off? Your employer-sponsored retirement plan may be a good place to start.
