Given the rapid pace of change and unknown future of the coronavirus (COVID-19) situation in Italy, Japan, China, and South Korea, the University at Albany is taking steps to address safety and potential future travel issues for all UAlbany summer study abroad programs in these countries. Based on guidance from the New York State Department of Health, we are canceling summer programs in these locations.

The University does not make this decision lightly, but the safety of our students must be our primary concern. If you are interested in pursuing a summer study abroad program in a different location, please contact your study abroad advisor. Your advisor is either Jay Stokes for programs in Italy or Carmeisha Huckelby for programs in Japan, China, and South Korea. If you choose not to attend a summer program this year, and have already paid a program deposit, the funds will be returned to you as soon as possible.

The University understands this is a difficult situation and we are here to support you throughout this transition. Thank you for your patience and understanding.
