AFRE 221Y  Intermediate French I  (4)

General Education: OD
Instructor: H. Pafundi, jhpafundi@aol.com

TAUGHT IN FRENCH. This four credit course uses short-subject dramatic films, cultural readings and literary texts as well as opportunities for both face-to-face and on-line interactions with native speakers to provide a substantial review of the basics while expanding students’ knowledge of French vocabulary, structure, and functions. Students learn to express themselves in a more varied and meaningful way, while building their skills in listening comprehension and in cultural awareness. Text: Imaginez, 3rd edition (Mitschke). Prerequisite: AFRE 102 or permission of the instructor.

AFRE 222Y  Intermediate French II  (4)

General Education: OD
Instructor: V. Martin, PhD, martinv49@gmail.com

TAUGHT IN FRENCH. This 4 credit course uses a film-based approach to build on students’ previous knowledge of French vocabulary and structures and to expand and refine their ability to express themselves both orally and in writing. Through the study of five contemporary feature-length films and both face-to-face and on-line interactions with native speakers from around the francophone world, students explore a variety of cultural themes while increasing their ability to comprehend spoken French used in context by native speakers. Text: Séquences, 3rd edition. (Bissière and Degroult). Prerequisite: AFRE 221 or permission of the instructor.

AFRE 270Y  Beginning French for Business  (3)

Instructor: V. Martin, PhD, martinv49@gmail.com

In this course students learn and practice how to communicate in a French business environment. Successful students will acquire greater fluency, mastery of business vocabulary, knowledge of fundamental work-related cultural differences and familiarity with basic practices for doing business in France. The course includes an online exchange with native French speakers from the Université de Haute-Alsace in France and prepares students to take the DFP A2 (Diplôme de français professionnel-niveau A2), sponsored by the Paris Chamber of Commerce and Industry. Students who pass this fee-based test earn a diploma that attests to their functional command of both oral and written French. The diploma is widely recognized in the French business community and has the potential to enhance the professional credentials of students looking to work in an international context. Prerequisite: AFRE 221 Intermediate French I (or the equivalent with permission of the instructor).

ASPN 209  Spanish Conversation & Composition for Heritage Speakers of Spanish  (3)
Instructor:  L. Cuesta, PhD, lcuesta@albany.edu
TAUGHT IN SPANISH. Intensive study of the Spanish language with frequent short compositions and oral presentations. Also includes some short readings and class discussions of topics of special interest to heritage speakers of Spanish. This course is only for heritage speakers of Spanish, intended to meet their specific language needs; non-heritage speakers should enroll in ASPN 208. Only one of ASPN 208, 209, and 301 may be taken for credit. Prerequisite: ASPN 205 or permission of instructor.

ASPN 302  Advanced Spanish Grammar  (3)
Instructor: E. Lansing, PhD, elansing@albany.edu
TAUGHT IN SPANISH. ASPN 302 es un curso avanzado que ofrece un repaso exhaustivo de la gramática española con especial atención a los puntos de alta frecuencia y de dificultad notable para los angloparlantes (los tiempos verbales, los pronombres, las preposiciones, etc.). Habrá discusiones para contrastar estas estructuras con aquellas en la lengua inglesa y los estudiantes tendrán que realizar y entregar ejercicios escritos con regularidad. Prerequisite: ASPN 205 or 206, or placement.

ASPN 303 (formerly ASPN 496)  Introduction to Spanish Linguistics  (3)
Instructor:  S. Zahler, PhD, szahler@albany.edu
TAUGHT IN SPANISH. Why does the “b” in bata sound different than the “b” in haba? Does Juan viene mañana really mean the same thing as Mañana viene Juan? Exploring questions like these, this course offers a general introduction to Spanish linguistics with the aim of preparing students for more specialized study of specific linguistic areas in more advanced classes. We will examine the Spanish language at various levels such as that of the sound, the word, and the sentence. We will also delve into topics such as differences between dialects of Spanish and between different groups of speakers as well as how Spanish is acquired as a second or foreign language. Prerequisite: ASPN 208 or 209 or 301, or consent of instructor.

ASPN 310 (formerly ASPN 223)  Introduction to Literary Methods  (3)
General Education: DP-HUM
Instructor:  L. Cuesta, PhD, lcuesta@albany.edu
TAUGHT IN SPANISH. This is a beginning literature course where students are introduced to the study of Hispanic literature. The course offers a critical introduction to a number of literary genres (poems, plays, short stories and novels) and popular culture (songs, cartoons), with a strong emphasis on analytical reading methods. Literary pieces will be examined by genre, thus highlighting some of the issues and assumptions that underlie literary studies at this level, as well as the practical aspects of literary analysis. Discussion of literary texts will be a significant component of this course so that students will be able to gain insight into the nuances of a literary text and develop a critical voice of their own. Prerequisite: ASPN 208 or 209 or 301, or permission of instructor.

ASPN 316  Representative Spanish American Authors  (3)
Instructor:  M. Alejandra Aguilar, PhD, maguilardornelles@albany.edu

ASPN 322 (=A LCS 302)  Los Latinos en Estados Unidos  (3)
Instructor:  Carmen Serrano, PhD, cserrano4@albany.edu
TAUGHT IN SPANISH. In this course we examine major U.S. Latino groups (Mexican-American, Cuban, Puerto Rican, Dominican) and the major literary works produced by U.S. Latino writers from the 1960s to the present. Students will study demographic, socio-economic, historical, and cultural aspects of these groups in the context of their interaction with mainstream society. Only one version of ASPN 322 may be taken for credit. Prerequisite(s): A SPN 223 or ASPN 310 or permission of instructor.

ASPN 401 Spanish Phonetics and Phonology (3)
Instructor: M. Solon, PhD, msolon@albany.edu
TAUGHT IN SPANISH. Sounds are the foundation and building blocks of human language. This course takes an in-depth look at the sound system of the Spanish language. Students will explore the phonetics (the sounds) and phonology (the system/organization of those sounds) of Spanish, will learn about different sound patterns and processes (for example, why and how sounds and words in Spanish link together and influence each other during speech), will examine dialectal differences and differences between English and Spanish, and will gain hands-on lab experience analyzing the acoustics (like the sound wave pictured below) of their own and others’ speech in Spanish. Prerequisite(s): this is a capstone course and requires senior Spanish major with Spanish Language, Linguistics, Teaching concentration and one 400 level Spanish linguistics course.

ASPN 405 History of Spanish Language (3)
Instructor: S. Zahler, PhD, szahler@albany.edu
TAught in Spanish. Historical phonology and morphology: from Vulgar Latin to medieval and modern Spanish. Prerequisite(s): ASPN 303 or ASPN 496 or permission of instructor.

A SPN 408 Spanish Second Language Acquisition (3)
Instructor: M. Solon, PhD, msolon@albany.edu
This course presents a panoramic view of the major questions, research methods, and findings in the study of the acquisition of Spanish as a second, additional, or foreign language. The first part of the course explores fundamental concepts in the field of second language acquisition—such as interlanguage, language transfer, language universals, error analysis, and stages of development—and traces the development of the field from early behaviorist theories to contemporary approaches to learner language. The second part of the course delves into contemporary research on the acquisition of Spanish. Students will examine and analyze samples of learner language using tools typically employed in the field and will explore structures from all levels of grammar that present challenges to Spanish language learners. Prerequisite(s): ASPN 303 (formerly ASPN 496) or permission of instructor.

ASPN 443 Avant-Garde Movements in Latin America (3)
Instructor: C. Serrano, PhD, cserrano4@albany.edu
TAught in Spanish. In this course, we follow the impact of the historical avant-garde and the neo-avant-garde in Latin America during the twentieth century. We will read and analyze manifestos, poetry, novels, and films from Argentina, Chile, Mexico, and Peru. Some of the movements to be examined include creacionismo, estridentismo, ultrai smo and surrealismo. Prerequisite(s): this is a capstone course and requires senior Spanish major with Hispanic Literatures and Cultures concentration and one 400 level Spanish literature course.

ASPN 491 Forensic Spanish Linguistics (3)
Instructor: L. Sayahi, PhD, lsayahi@albany.edu
TAught in Spanish. This course studies the intersection between language and the law with specific reference to legal Spanish. The class will focus on two main areas: the lexical and grammatical characteristics of legal Spanish and the forensic linguist as an expert and participant in judicial processes. Aspects of the criminal use of the Spanish language in different modalities will also be analyzed. The objective is to familiarize students with the emerging field of forensic linguistics and its usefulness in multilingual societies. Prerequisite(s): A SPN 303 or permission of instructor.
