

Program Objectives, Student Learning Outcomes, and Outcome Measurement

Learning, Personal and Wellness-Related Development of Middle Earth Peer Educators: Middle Earth’s training and service mission adheres to constructs that are consistent with the Council for the Advancement of Standards (CAS) Learning and Development Outcomes. These learning outcomes include: cognitive complexity; intrapersonal development; practical competence; interpersonal competence; knowledge acquisition, integration, construction and application; and humanitarianism and civic engagement. These constructs, in turn, are used to evaluate program effectiveness and guide our assessment efforts as follows:

Domain	Areas Assessed at Pre and Post Training
Cognitive Complexity	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Applying previous experiences to inform new situations.</li> <li>• Reevaluating previous assumptions.</li> <li>• Formulating an innovative approach to a solution or problem.</li> <li>• Critically analyzing situations.</li> <li>• Analyzing the basic elements of an idea, experience, or theory.</li> <li>• Applying theories or concepts to practical problems in new situations.</li> <li>• Understanding the points of view of others</li> </ul>

Middle Earth Peer Educator Retention in College: We hypothesize that attention provided to Middle Earth trainees through the integration of CAS Learning and Development Outcomes into teaching and supervision, as well as the supervisory contact and mentoring delivered to Middle Earth students by instructors, will be associated with their high retention and graduation rates at UAlbany. To measure this program objective, the Middle Earth Director tracks on an annual basis the retention rates for students enrolled in Middle Earth courses.
