

Bryan Early
Political Science

Sponsor: U.S. Department of State
Dates: September 30, 2014 to September 30, 2015
Amount: $129,960

Strategic Trade Control Dual-Use and Munitions Licensing and Classification Workshop-Tajikistan

The CPR Team will utilize a combination of formal classroom instruction and practical exercises to assist the Government of Tajikistan (GOTI) with improving its strategic trade control framework through the provision of one five-day workshop designed for GOTI export control licensing officials. The formal presentations will strive to illustrate the key elements of an effective and comprehensive strategic trade licensing system, in particular, best practices with regard to the interagency and technical review processes (assessing the type of commodity, end-use, all parties to the transaction, destination, route, etc. in concert with interagency partners).

The formal presentations also will provide strategic trade control licensing assistance to GOTI export control officials in order for Tajikistan to conform to its new export control legislation which is expected to be enacted in the first quarter of CY2014, accepted international standards, and to adhere to all relevant nonproliferation regimes. At the conclusion of the workshop, the target audience should have the knowledge, skills, and reference resources necessary to fully understand GOTI dual-use and munitions export control licensing requirements and best practices with regard to export controls and transit/transshipment controls.