SUBJECT: RF Sponsored Program Employee Salary Plan- FY 2023-24

DATE: 6/28/23

The Research Foundation for SUNY has approved a one-year Salary Plan for FY 2023-24. The following guidelines are designed to assist in implementing the plan.

Across-the-Board Increases

A general, across-the-board (ATB) increase is authorized for sponsored program employees, subject to the availability of funds.

Fiscal Year	Authorized ATB Increase
2023-24	3.00%

Discretionary Increases

- Individual discretionary base salary adjustments, based on performance and/or equity considerations, are authorized based on availability of funds, up to 4% of base salary.
- Individual one-time discretionary awards (based on performance and/or equity) not added to the employee's base salary, will be considered subject to the allowability on the sponsored award and compliance with federal cost principles. The total combined amount of any one-time discretionary award, or discretionary increase to base salary, is authorized up to 4% of current base salary.
- A discretionary award that is a combination of a lump sum payment and base salary increase must be processed with the same effective date.

Discretionary increases of any kind requested on a sponsored award are subject to allowability on the sponsored award and compliance with federal cost principles.

Salary Factors:

Salary adjustment decisions should consider the effect of three primary factors:

- Changes in market conditions: Particular attention should be paid to the effect of inflation on salaries and to competitive salaries in the research area and external market.
- Changes in individual productivity: The RF is committed to pay for performance; thus salary increases should reward employees for increased productivity and meritorious performance.

- Resources available: Sponsored funding may be limited due to salary caps and other restrictions. Projects that are unable to implement the RF salary plan should contact Research Foundation Human Resources for proper documentation of the HR files.

Justification for Discretionary

- Performance Evaluations: Performance is usually a primary factor in determining an employee's discretionary salary increase; therefore, it is strongly recommended that a performance evaluation be given in conjunction with the award. Increases should not be given if an employee has less than acceptable performance. Performance plan forms can be downloaded at: <https://www.albany.edu/rfhr/performance.php>. When a performance evaluation is unavailable, justification for variances in discretionary among staff must be provided for review by RFHR.

Effective Date for Increases

- Salary increases covered under this plan may be made effective either July 1, the employee's anniversary date or the project anniversary date. The method selected should be consistent for all employees on the project and should not change from year-to-year. Use of a different date, when required for budgetary reasons, must be documented, and kept on file with RFHR. Discretionary and ATB awards must be processed with the same effective date.
- Employees who are not actively on payroll at the time increases are paid, are ineligible for salary increases. This includes retroactive salary increases. Employees on leave may be considered active, therefore HR should be consulted for eligibility rules.
- Salary increases to be paid on a sponsored award, with a retroactive date greater than one-month, requires a thorough review by Sponsored Programs Administration to ensure compliance with sponsor and federal regulations.

Salary Rates Above or Below the Salary Range

Salary increases that result in salary rates above the salary range maximum will be authorized on an exception basis and will require the prior approval of the RF Operations Manager. Written justification must be kept on file. Salary rates that are below the appropriate salary range will not be authorized.

Salary Increase Administration

To request a salary increase, principal investigators should submit a Salary Plan Increase Form.

Unless you are contacted for additional supporting documentation, salary requests will be processed according to the payroll deadline calendar located at:
