

Are the Kids alright?

COVID-19 + YOUTH

RESEARCH. POLICY. PRACTICE. ADVOCACY.

COVID-19 & COMMUNITIES: POSITIVELY ENGAGING & SUPPORTING YOUTH & FAMILIES

June 2-5,
2020

Yamanda Wright, Ph.D.

RTI International; Youth, Violence Prevention, and Community Justice Division

Yamanda Wright, Ph.D., is a Research Psychologist for the Youth, Violence Prevention, and Community Justice Program at RTI International. She is passionate about using data to reform laws and policies that disproportionately affect youth of color, such as school district policies that contribute to an over-representation of Black and Latino students in school citations and arrests. When she is not analyzing data, she enjoys writing about children's understanding of race and gender. Her previous work has been published in a number of journals and books, most recently including Child Development Perspectives and Advances in Child Development and Behavior, and has received funding from the American Psychological Foundation's Kenneth B. and Mamie P. Clark Fund.

Social Media handle: @drmandafay on Twitter

A virtual forum hosted by the

Youth Justice Institute

An initiative of the Division of Criminal Justice Services,
Office of Children and Family Services and University at Albany