Summer Young Writers Institute

The New York State Writers Institute in conjunction with the Office of the Dean of Special Programs at Skidmore College is pleased to announce the 10th annual creative writing workshop for New York State high school students. The New York State Summer Young Writers Institute (SYWI) will be held at Skidmore College, Saratoga Springs, New York, July 19 – 25, 2009.

Participants in the SYWI will receive instruction in poetry, prose, and imaginative nonfiction, and engage in the critical evaluation of each other's work. There will be three workshops per day: two sessions in the morning, and one in the afternoon. In addition, the young writers will attend evening readings and craft talks by nationally known writers who are part of the New York State Summer Writers Institute, a writing workshop for adults, which also takes place on the Skidmore campus during the month of July. This four-week workshop for adult writers features some of the most famous and well-regarded authors in the country, such as Russell Banks, Ann Beattie, Mary Gordon, William Kennedy, Joyce Carol Oates, Robert Pinsky, and many more. Participants in the SYWI will have an opportunity to interact with some of these major literary figures.

By bringing the top student writers in the state together to work extensively with professional writers, the SYWI provides young artists with recognition, respect, opportunities for artistic development, and peer support.

Participants are expected to write extensively and complete pieces of work in three genres. Computers will be available for writing and revision. Students will present a reading of their work and selections produced during the Institute will be published in an anthology.

The SYWI is open to any New York State high school student entering the 10th, 11th, or 12th grade in the fall of 2009. Thirty-four students will be chosen based on the submission of creative writing samples (see application for details). Full and partial scholarships are available to participants based on need.

Summer Faculty 2009

Kathleen Aguero's most recent book of poetry, Daughter Of, is published by Cedar Hill Books. The author of two previous books of poetry and editor of three anthologies of multicultural literature from the University of Georgia Press, she is a Professor of English at Pine Manor College in Chestnut Hill, MA, teaching in their low-residency MFA and undergraduate programs.

Liza Frenette is an assistant editor at New York Teacher, the official membership newspaper published by New York State United Teachers (NYSUT). Author of three novels for children, including Soft Shoulders, Ms. Frenette has published articles in Reader's Digest and Adirondack Life, among other publications, and has won first place feature and news writing awards from UPI and Associated Press.

Elaine Handley is a poet and fiction writer, as well as an Associate Professor of Writing and Literature at Empire State College. Her poetry chapbooks, Notes from the Fire Tower and Glacial Erratica won the Adirondack Center for Writing Award in Poetry in 2006 and 2007 respectively. She is currently completing Deep River, an historical novel about the Underground Railroad.

Richard Hoffman's memoir, Half the House, first published in 1995 by Harcourt Brace, was recently reissued in a new and expanded edition. He is also author of the poetry collections Without Paradise and Gold Star Road, winner of the 2007 Barrow Street Press Poetry Prize. Writer-in-Residence at Emerson College, he also teaches in the Stonecoast MFA Program.

Bob Miner worked for Newsweek and has written for the New York Times, Washington Post, The Village Voice, Esquire. He has published two novels—Exes and Mother's Day—and is finishing up the third novel in this series, Father, Son and Holy Ghost, as well as writing nonfiction about Istanbul, Turkey. Since 1980 he has taught writing for the University at Albany and Empire State College, as well as for Skidmore College, Syracuse University, Siena College, and the College of St. Rose.

William B. Patrick is the founder and director of the New York State Summer Young Writers Institute. His latest book, Saving Troy, is a creative nonfiction chronicle of a year spent living and riding with professional firefighters and paramedics. He has also published a memoir, an award-winning novel, and two books of poetry with BOA Editions. Mr. Patrick teaches writing for the College of St. Rose and for the Stonecoast MFA Program.

It is the policy of the NYS Summer Young Writers Institute to prohibit discrimination for or against any individual or group of its students, prospective students, employees, or prospective employees on the basis of race, color, religion, gender, disability, age, national or ethnic origin, or sexual orientation.

Sponsors

The New York State Writers Institute is one of America's premier sites for celebrating achievement in the art of writing, and nurturing aspiring writers. Mandated in 1984 by New York's governor and legislature to provide "a milieu for established and aspiring writers to work together . . . to increase the freedom of the artistic imagination," the Institute sponsors a diverse program of author visits, film screenings, symposia, and writing workshops. Founded by Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist William Kennedy and located at the University at Albany, the Institute collaborates with a variety of public and private organizations to enhance educational and cultural opportunities for students and the general public.

Skidmore is an independent, four-year liberal arts college located about one mile from historic downtown Saratoga Springs, NY. Skidmore extends its academic year emphasis on experimentation and creativity across disciplines into the summer months, through its numerous institutes in the creative and performing arts; the college's Summer Term; programs in the liberal and studio arts for pre-college students; and by promoting a wide array of campus events including concerts, film screenings, lectures, readings and art exhibits.

The New York State Summer Young Writers Institute gratefully acknowledges the support of our sponsors, without whom the program would not be possible. Thank you!
